

In the Steps of the Great American Entomologist, Frank Eugene Lutz

By John Pallister, Kathleen Elgin

Rowman & Littlefield. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, In the Steps of the Great American Entomologist, Frank Eugene Lutz, John Pallister, Kathleen Elgin, Frank Eugene Lutz became an entomologist at a time when this science was still new. He was one of the first to set up experiments in the study of heredity using the common fruit fly. In his many field trips he observed unusual insects in their natural habitats and brought back thousands of valuable specimens. As curator of the Department of Entomology at the American Museum of Natural History, he was responsible for innovations in labeling and museum display. His observations of more than one thousand species found in his own back yard were the basis for his classic book, Lots of Insects. He set up the first nature trail in America; devising museum exhibits in natural outdoor settings. This first biography of one of the great American entomologists is filled with all the excitement that is to be found in the strange and infinite world of insects. Here is the fascinating story of Dr. Lutz's career along with a series of natured projects you can do at home that will help you observe insect behavior...
