AMACOM. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 320 pages. Dimensions: 9.1in. x 7.3in. x 0.9in. Every day, millions of users log on to their favorite online forums, communities and social spaces and interact with others to get advice and discuss everything from the latest news and trends to their hobbies and professions to whatever else strikes their fancy. Administrators have to lead these communities, deal with difficult users, manage staff members and make tough decisions. Legal constraints, spammers and technical issues can turn the excitement of running an online community into chaos. With the right guidance, however, running forums can be an enjoyable and rewarding experience. My name is Patrick O'Keefe and I own the iFroggy Network. I've spent years developing and managing online communities. In this book, I share my experiences in a straight forward, honest fashion and show you how to make the right decisions about every aspect of your forums, including: Creating an organizational structure Designing and launching your community Deciding on user options like avatars and private messaging Promoting and attracting members Utilizing technology to your benefit Developing and enforcing guidelines Choosing and managing moderators Shutting down users who disrupt and harm the community Involving your users and keeping the site interesting and inviting Generating revenue What is talked about in this book is not hypothetical - it consists of in use, battle-tested theories and solutions, making it so that when you must deal with these issues on your forums, you will be better equipped. Real life examples are cited throughout, including the actual user guidelines, staff member guidelines and more, from real communities. This is a book for both new administrators and experienced ones. If you are new, it will give you a major boost as you grow your knowledge and build your community. If you are already an administrator that's leading a successful community, the book...
